A Brief History and Profile of The Town of Malta

The Mohawk and the Mohican Indians were the first inhabitants of the Malta area, hunting and fishing along the banks of Round Lake, which was then known as Lake Tanendahowa. The earliest American settlement was believed to have been centered around a malt brewery, bringing about the name Maltaville and eventually Malta.

One of Malta's earliest settlers included Michael Dunning and his family who purchased a large plot of land around the year 1774. This hamlet became known as Dunning Street. Mr Dunning set aside an open tract of land where the American militia would train annually. The troops fought in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, and the Civil War. During the years when America was not at war the training was more of a social event where people could enjoy the company of far-away neighbors.

The Town of Malta was not officially established until 1802 when it became separate from the Town of Stillwater. Prior to this time, Malta was already home to several saw and grist mills as well as a woolen mill, many of which were powered by water from nearby streams. In addition, there were wagon and carriage shops, many inns, and two hotels.

The Round Lake area became popular in 1868 when several Methodist laymen purchased a tract of land on the West shore of the lake as a site for camp meetings. The Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad Company erected a passenger station nearby to accommodate the area with transportation for both people and freight. The first week-long camp meeting attracted 8,000 people while the second, just one year later, drew 20,000. Preachers would speak from specially constructed stands while attendees sat on planks which were placed on stumps. As the years progressed the meetings became more educational and cultural although they remained primarily religious in nature. Several cottages were constructed as an option to sleeping in tents, and an auditorium was built for the meeting site. In 1888, the camp site acquired a wooden Ferris-Tracker organ, originally built in 1847, now considered to be "the largest, oldest, three manual in existence". (See our Round Lake Village page for more information on how you can help to preserve this part of our local heritage).

Malta is located at exits 11, 12 and 13 of the Adirondack Northway (Interstate 87). It is in the center of Saratoga County, about 20 miles north of Albany, and 10 minutes south of Saratoga Springs. It is a residential community located close to the Capital District, yet it maintains the serenity of an upstate rural town.
<http://www.malta-town.org/history.htm>

Malta is the home to many businesses including the Corporate Headquarters of Stewart's Shops and the North Atlantic Regional Office of State Farm Insurance Company.
